

DEMOCRAT PROMISES NEW DEAL FOR FARMER IF ELECTED; INVADES GRAIN BELT FOR SPEECH

6-POINT PLAN HEARD TODAY

Present System of Farm Relief Ghastly Fraud Roosevelt States

CROWDS APPLAUD

Topeka Is Scene of Enthusiastic Meeting

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES

TOPEKA, Kans., Sept. 14.

Assailing the Hoover administration's efforts at farm relief as "a ghastly fraud," Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt invaded the heart of the grain belt today with a promise of a new deal for agriculture, if elected, and the outline of a plan by which he believes it can be accomplished.

The Democratic nominee's first major speech west of the Mississippi was made from the steps of the Kansas state capitol, where only a few weeks ago Vice-President Curtis was notified of his renomination. His audience consisted of thousands of agriculturists and their allies, drawn not only from Kansas but from the whole Missouri valley.

PAR WITH INDUSTRY

Specifically, Gov. Roosevelt proposed to put agriculture on a parity with industry through the extension of tariff benefits. "I seek," he said, "to give to that portion of the crop consumed in the United States a benefit equivalent to a tariff sufficient to give you farmers an adequate price."

He then proceeded to outline the specifications "which most of the reasonable leaders of agriculture" are agreed upon and to pledge "wholehearted accord" with them. "First," he said, "the plan must provide for the producer of staple surplus commodities such as wheat, cotton, corn in the form of hogs and tobacco, a tariff benefit over world prices which is the equivalent to the benefit given by the tariff to industrial products. This differential benefit must be so applied as not to stimulate further production.

FINANCE ITSELF

"Second, the plan must finance itself. Agriculture has at no time sought and does not now seek any such access to the public treasury as was provided by the futile and costly attempts at price stabilization by the federal farm board. It seeks only equality with tariff-protected industry.

"Third, it must not make use of any mechanism which would cause our European customers to retaliate on the ground of dumping. It must be based upon making the tariff effective and direct in its operation.

"Fourth, it must make use of existing agencies, and so far as possible be decentralized in its operation."

Assassin Of French President Pays For Crime On Guillotine; Struggles At End

Paul Gorguloff Cries "Here Is Justice, Here Is Forgiveness For All."

PARIS, Sept. 14.—Paul Gorguloff, assassin of former President Paul Doumer, died on the guillotine for his crime here today.

The knife, scheduled to carry out its deadly mission a few minutes earlier, fell at exactly 5:27 a. m., delayed when the man who once styled himself a "Cossack" struggled as the end approached.

There was no demonstration among the hundred civilian spectators who witnessed the execution.

When Gorguloff was awakened in his cell at the Sante prison his first words were: "I am not afraid." Then, in silence, he drank two glasses of rum.

USE RUSSIAN TONGUE
A Russian priest administered the confession in the Russian language after which Gorguloff declared:

"Russia and France—I love both. I am dying for my idea. I pray that my son soon to be born will be a doctor and not a Bolshevik.

"I beg the forgiveness of the world. Tell my wife I love her much."

At 4:56, when he stood facing the guillotine, the condemned man said:

Hopes Child, Yet Unborn, Will Become Doctor, and Not a Bolshevik.

forgiveness for everybody." While his head was on the block he struggled with his guards and sobbed audibly, whispering:

"Russia—my fatherland."

Then the knife fell.

TO MEDICAL SCHOOL
Gorguloff's head, contrary to the usual procedure, was sent immediately to the Ecole De Medicine.

Although only a small number of civilians witnessed the execution, nearby streets were jammed with crowds waiting for news. Most of the watchers were women.

LARGE VOTES IN 8 STATES

Dry Candidates Appear To Have Edge in Returns of Several Elections.

By International News Service
November's political battle lines were being determined in eight states today as returns were received from primaries held yesterday.

That greater interest is being shown in government than at any time in recent years was demonstrated by the unusually large vote cast in Michigan, New Hampshire, Vermont, Arizona, Colorado, South Carolina, Louisiana, Mississippi and Washington.

Candidates for Senator, Congressmen, Governor and other offices were chosen in each of these states. Meantime, speculation ran high on the portent of the Democratic sweep in the Maine election.

RETURNS INCOMPLETE

Incomplete returns collected by International News Service disclosed the following results of primary contests:

New Hampshire—George H. Moses, Republican veteran of the senate unopposed for renomination. Gov. John G. Winant in heavy lead for Republican gubernatorial nomination. Former Gov. Fred H. Brown apparent winner of Democratic senatorial nomination. Henri T. Ledoux leading for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Arizona—W. P. Hunt, 73, seven-times governor, trailing Dr. B. B. Moeur for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Senator Carl Hayden apparently renominated by Democrats on platform opposing payment of bonus. Former Senator Ralph Cameron, a liberal, had a 3 to 1 lead over Hoval A. Smith, a dry, for the Republican senatorial nomination. John Kinney leading for the Republican gubernatorial honor.

Michigan—Gov. Wilbur M. Brugger overwhelmingly led four opponents for the Republican renomination. William A. Comstock apparent Democratic gubernatorial nominee.

Colorado—Former Senator Alva B. Adams leading John T. Barnett for the Democratic senatorial nomination. Lieut. Gov. Ed C. Johnson apparent winner of Democratic gubernatorial contest. Karl Schuyt.

CHILD IS KILLED GOING TO SCHOOL

MARTIN FERRY, Sept. 14.—Six-year-old Charles Tweedy, who started to school in the first grade at Rush Run Monday, lay dead here today, the first schoolboy victim of an automobile accident since schools opened for the fall term.

James E. Meehan, 51, former Cleveland insurance salesman, was also killed here yesterday in an eastern Ohio automobile accident. He was run down in front of the home of a sister, whom he was visiting.

The Tweedy boy died of injuries suffered when he was struck while enroute to classes.

FINED $10

Ellsworth Boyer, Town-st. one of a trio arrested Monday evening on a charge of destroying property at the Clifton Theater was fined $10, when he pleaded guilty to Mayor B. T. Hedges Tuesday evening. He promised to pay and was released.

Boyer was arrested with Carl Malone of Walnut-st. and William Essick of E. Mound-st. The latter will be arraigned before Judge E. A. Brown in juvenile court.

TALLAHASSEE Fla., Sept. 14.—Two weapons of starvation and thirst were employed by prison camp officials today to break the strike of 32 prisoners of the Hosford-rd camp after tear gas bombs had failed to dislodge them from their barricaded sleeping quarters.

Shouting derisive insults at the guards the prisoners defied all attempts of guards to dislodge them.

The prisoners went on strike yesterday refusing to move from their sleeping quarters. All 65 convicts comprising the prison camp population were at first included in the mutiny but repeated bombardment by tear gas bombs brought surrender of all but 32.

The prisoners' strike in protest of food which they asserted is of poor quality and meager.

CASE IS SETTLED

The common pleas court case of Leslie E. Dancy of E. Main-st. against the Prudential Insurance Co. of America for $1326.24 has been settled and dismissed at the plaintiff's costs according to an entry filed in court.

Tom A. Renick was attorney for Dancy and Carl Valentine represented the defendant.

Capt. Watson Given Permission To Transport Family To Safer Port.

ANGMAGSALIK, Greenland, Sept. 14.—Safe after their adventure with the elements, the "Flying Family" of Hutchinsons and their companions commenced preparations to go home here today.

Rescued dramatically from almost certain death after their plane was wrecked by waves on the Greenland coast, where it was forced down in a snowstorm, the party of eight owed their lives to the valor of Captain Thomas Watson of the British trawler Lord Talbot, who found them in a desolate fjord 32 hours after receiving their first distress signals.

The rescue was effected at dawn yesterday, several hours after the Lord Talbot first located the Hutchinsons at Ikersuak Fjord, 38 miles from here.

LOGAN FUND ON INCREASE

Contributions Are Near $400 Mark; Others Contemplating Giving Sums.

Contributions have increased in the past few days in the project to obtain $900 with which to rebuild the Logan Elm and at present the fund is near the $400 mark, not quite half of the amount necessary to rehabilitate the famous tree.

Word has been received that the Kingston Garden club has decided to contribute $10 toward the fund. L. E. Seitz, superintendent of the Pickaway-twp school, reports that contributions are being gathered there for the fund. Lumbermen of district No. 4, which includes Pickaway-co., have contributed $10 and several other individuals and organizations are contemplating donating. Money is being received by The Herald by The Ohio State Journal, Columbus, and The Scioto Gazette, Chillicothe.

Carson Dresbach of Pickaway-twp, who operates a farm near the Logan Elm, has conceived an idea which will aid the tree. Mr. Dresbach is treasurer of the Scioto Livestock Sales Co., and he has offered to auction off a baby born at Chillicothe, Friday, and turn the proceeds over to the fund.

A contribution has been received from the Elizabeth Reese chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution of Lancaster.

PHYSICIANS WATCH PROGRESS OF TACK

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—At intervals of two hours, doctors today gazed into the inside of 19-months old Patricia Clarke's tiny body, made transparent by X-rays, and watched the progress of a tack which the little girl swallowed.

At Jamaica hospital, where she was treated, physicians said they made Patricia eat much mush and potatoes in hope the tack point would be imbedded in the soft mass and pass from the body without injuring it.

Should this prove impossible, an operation probably will be performed.

Holds All-Day Conference With Mills and Brown

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—President Hoover and his campaign organization by public admission had been jolted into a realization today that strenuous measures are necessary if the Republicans are to retain possession of the White House against Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The unexpected Democratic sweep of Maine in the state elections had served to remodel entirely the political strategy mapped out originally for the President. Instead of remaining aloof from the national arena on the premise his every moment was occupied in wrestling the country from the ill effects of depression, it seemed certain today that Mr. Hoover from now on until election time would press his case vigorously with the electorate.

MAY VISIT OHIO

Three out of four of Washington speeches had been planned for the President, to be delivered in Minneapolis, Chicago and New York. Indications now are that he will make more. Ohio may be touched and it is quite possible the executive will go west of the Mississippi river, even, as far as the Pacific coast.

An almost unprecedented message from the President to his national campaign manager, Everett Sanders, bore testimony to the seriousness of the election situation as seen through Republican eyes.

"The result of the election in Ohio imposes need for renewed and stronger effort that the people

LEGION VOTES ON 3 ISSUES

Veterans To Ask Immediate Payment of Bonus, Prohibition Repeal.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 14.—America's organized veterans of the World War, nearly 1,000,000 strong, were ready today to ask their countrymen to repeal prohibition, modify the Volstead act and pay their adjusted wartime compensation in cash.

This program was certain of adoption by the fourteenth annual convention of the American Legion before nightfall. The war veterans, speaking by convention, were eager to declare themselves on major issues confronting the nation, after devoting two days to formalities and their famous annual parade.

The effort to censure President Hoover, because he used federal troops to drive bonus marchers from Washington, seemed doomed to defeat, because so many leaders believed it would plunge the organization directly into the presidential campaign. The Pennsylvania delegation was staging a lone fight to censure the President with handling the Bonus situation "in a regrettable manner."

Holds All-Day Conference
With Mills and Brown

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—President Hoover and his campaign organization by public admission had been jolted into a realization today that strenuous measures are necessary if the Republicans are to retain possession of the White House against Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The unexpected Democratic sweep of Maine in the state elections had served to remodel entirely the political strategy mapped out originally for the President. Instead of remaining aloof from the national arena on the premise his every moment was occupied in wrestling the country from the ill effects of depression, it seemed certain today that Mr. Hoover from now on until election time would press his case vigorously with the electorate.

MAY VISIT OHIO

Three out-of-Washington speeches had been planned for the President, to be delivered in Minneapolis, Chicago and New York. Indications now are that he will visit Ohio. Ohio may be touched and it is quite possible the executive will go west of the Mississippi river, even as far as the Pacific coast.

An almost unprecedented message from the President to his national campaign manager, Everett Sanders, bore testimony to the seriousness of the election situation as seen through Republican eyes.

"The result of the election in Maine imposes need for renewed and stronger effort that the people

Frank Armstrong of Salter Creek-twp. is seriously ill following an operation for the removal of a tumor, performed at Grant Hospital, Monday.

Mr. Armstrong is the father of Miss Mary Armstrong, deputy county recorder, and Mark Armstrong of W. High-st.

PHYSICIANS WATCH

PROGRESS OF TACK

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—At intervals of two hours, doctors today gazed into the inside of 19-months old Patricia Clarke's tiny body, made transparent by X-rays, and watched the progress of a tack which the little girl swallowed.

At Jamaica hospital where she was treated, physicians said they made Patricia eat much mush and potatoes in hope the tack point would be imbedded in the soft mass and pass from the body without injuring it.

Should this prove impossible, an operation probably will be performed.

Off on Western Vote Round-Up

BULLETIN

CAPE FINISTERRE, Spain, Sept. 14.—No word of the sighting of the monoplane American Nurse had reached here at 4:55 p. m. (11:55 a. m. eastern standard time) today about two hours after the "flying laboratory" was expected to reach the coast of Spain.

The weather is becoming cloudy with strong winds blowing.

MADRID, Sept. 14.—The airplane American Nurse, which took off from New York on a non-stop flight to Rome yesterday, was believed to be nearing the Spanish coast this morning and the government ordered strict watch kept for its arrival.

Wireless reports from ships which sighted the big monoplane with its three passengers, William Ulrich, pilot; Dr. Leon M. Picculi and Miss Edna Newcomer, student nurse, indicated that all was going well and aviation ministry officials here are confident the plane will cross either the Spanish or Portuguese coast before early afternoon.

SEEN NEAR AZORES

The latest report of the monoplane's progress was contained in a message addressed to International News Service by the master of the British steamer Ashburton, who reported sighting a monoplane (Continued on Page Three).

LEGION VOTES ON 3 ISSUES

Veterans To Ask Immediate Payment of Bonus, Prohibition Repeal.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 14.—America's organized veterans of the World War, nearly 1,000,000 strong, were ready today to ask their countrymen to repeal prohibition, modify the Volstead act and pay their adjusted wartime compensation in cash.

This program was certain of adoption by the fourteenth annual convention of the American Legion before tonight. The war veterans, speaking by convention, were eager to declare themselves on major issues confronting the nation, after devoting two days to formalities and their famous annual parade.

The effort to censure President Hoover, because he used federal troops to drive bonus marchers from Washington, seemed doomed to defeat, because so many leaders believed it would plunge the organization directly into the presidential campaign. The Pennsylvania delegation was staging a lone fight to charge the President with handling the Bonus situation "in a regrettable manner."

LATE CROPS SUFFER FROM NO MOISTURE

Late crops in Ohio suffered from insufficient moisture and periods of hot weather during August and on September 1 the estimates of growing crops were somewhat less than one month earlier according to A. R. Tuttle, Agricultural Statistician.

Corn. Many corn fields which promised good yields were burned and ripened prematurely due to the hot dry weather during August. Corn cutting which began the last of August was about two or three weeks ahead of normal. The September 1 forecast was for 33.5 bushels per acre compared with 35.0 bushels last month and the 10 year average of 35.0 bushels. Total production is placed at 118,500,000 bushels which is 12 per cent below the forecast last month and 7 per cent below the 5 year average.

Wheat. The winter crop was estimated to yield 20.5 bushels per acre or 4.0 bushels above average with a total production of 31,939,000 bushels or 19 per cent above average.

OATS LIGHT. Oats produced rather light yields especially in the southern half of the state where drought following seeding caused slow and poor germination and a large number of weeds in many fields. Yield per acre is estimated at 27.5 bushels per acre or 7.5 bushels below the 10 year average with an indicated production of 46,942,000 bushels which is only three-fourths of last year's crop and 37 per cent below average.

Barley like oats was a light crop with yield per acre placed at 20.0 bushels which is 5.1 bushels below average. Production at 2,000,000 bushels is only one-half the 5-year average.

Buckwheat condition dropped from 78 per cent on August 1 to 64 per cent on September 1 and the forecast now is for 330,000 bushels compared with the 5-year average of 444,000 bushels.

Potato prospects were not as promising on September 1 as one month earlier due to the dry weather.

ther. The present estimate is for 10,200,000 bushels which is about average.
Tame Hay production at 2,429,000 tons is nearly one-fourth smaller than last year due to a decreased acreage and smaller yield per acre. The 5-year average production is 3,161,000 tons.
Sugar Beets. It is estimated that 25,000 acres of beets will be harvested this year with a production forecast of 215,000 tons. The beets made good growth early in the season but made practically no growth during August because of the dry weather.
Soybeans. The preliminary estimate of acreage from which beans will be harvested is 25,000 compared with 28,000 in 1931. Production forecast is for 350,000 bushels.
Tobacco. The burley tobacco crop is placed at 12,240,000 pounds; Cigar Leaf 21,547,000 pounds and Miscellaneous Eastern Ohio 600,000 pounds.

FRUITS LOWER. Fruits. Continued drought caused a further dropping of fruits and the hot weather together with the drought is causing premature ripening with correspondingly undersize fruit. The apple crop forecast is now 4,851,000 bushels or two-thirds of an average crop. The commercial apple crop is shown at 478,000 barrels. Peaches promise 792,000 bushels or about one-half the average production. Pears are shown at 319,000 bushels compared with an average crop of 351,000 bushels. Grapes at 29,426 tons promise one-third better than an average production.

Milk Production. Milk production per cow in herds of Ohio Crop Reporters on September 1 was 14.7 pounds, which was about 6 per cent less than at the same time last year and also the 1926-1930 average. In addition to the continued relatively poor pasture condition this decreased production is partially caused by there being a little over one per cent more cows dry this year than for either last year or the 5-year average.

BUCKEYE ENROLLMENT UP. COLUMBUS, O.—Enrollment at the Ohio State university this summer was the third largest in the school's history. Total enrollment for the summer quarter which ended September 2, was reported by Miss Edith Cockhins, registrar, as 4,449.

may fully understand the issues at stake," Mr. Hoover wired Sanders. Our task is to acquaint every man and woman in the country with the facts and issues which confront the nation."

CONFERS ALL DAY

This telegram was sent only after the President had spent nearly an entire day in conference with Secretary of Treasury Ogden Mills and Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, his two chief political advisers. Mills and Brown both admitted, when they left the White House late yesterday afternoon, that the Republican party was facing an uphill fight. They said they were disappointed over the outcome in Maine and expressed the hope the Democratic victory would open the eyes of G. O. P. workers to the necessity of 24-hour endeavor from now on. The President, prior to Monday's halting in Maine had been pressed to invade the West. His advisers had counseled him to remain east of the Mississippi, arguing that the eastern area was the true battleground because of the preponderance of electoral votes. When "rock-ribbed" Republican Maine returned a Democratic governor and two out of three Democratic congressmen, the Hoover strategists changed their mind.

Say Bern's Will Is Missing Today

Safety Deposit Box Found Empty; Two Documents Name Miss Millette.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 14.—Search was continued today for the last will of Paul Bern, film executive, and self-slain husband of Jean Harlow, screen star, after the document was declared to be missing from his safety deposit box in a Galver City bank.

It had been hoped that the will would be found to throw light upon the motive for Bern's suicide in his "Honeymoon Home" more than a week ago.

Miss Irene Harrison Bern's secretary for six years, said she had put the will in the box. Miss Harlow was declared by an attorney who drew up the will recently to have been named the principal beneficiary.

Two documents found in the box, however, each provided an annuity of $2,500 for Miss Dorothy Millette, "Phantom Woman" in Bern's life.

One "will" made bequests to six prominent motion picture actresses whose names were withheld by those that inspected the documents.

INSULL LOSSES FEARED GREAT

Men, Women Depositors Stand To Lose All Savings In Company.

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—Men and women who felt fortunate in being able to invest their money in Insull enterprises three and four years ago, together with other creditors of the Insull organization, stand to lose a grand total of two billion dollars.

This was the disclosure made to International News Service today by a man familiar with the workings of the now bankrupt utilities network for many years. He said:

"The $226,510,977 deficit disclosed by the audit of the books of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., is less than one-fourth of the total deficit of all the Insull companies considered as a whole.

"Counting the shrinkage of values of Insull securities in the hands of the public, the loss will total around $2,000,000,000."

Hope has been abandoned that ever the debenture holders of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., might recover part of their losses. Experts pointed out that the company's total assets, $27,473,364, are far exceeded by bank loans alone, amounting to $41,585,020.

COLUMBUS, O.—It will cost the freshman who enters Ohio State University this fall from $60 to $75 less for his first year in college than it did the new student a year ago, according to a survey made by the offices of the entrance examiner and dean of men. The savings are made possible by reductions in board and room prices.

HUTCHINSONS

George R. Hutchinson, his wife, two daughters and four companions, Peter Redpatch, Gerald Altifisch, Joseph Ruff and Norman Alley, suffered from the extreme cold while they were marooned.

Hutchinson was so severely affected that he had to retire to bed when he arrived here. No fears were felt for him, however.

His plane, pounded by waves after the enforced landing, was a complete wreck. Parts of it were salvaged and taken aboard the ship with the refugees.

It was learned from Aberdeen, Scotland, that the owners of the Lord Talbot have instructed Watson to proceed with his fishing cruise, although empowering him to take the rescued flyers away from Greenland.

"Should the Hutchinsons wish eventually to be taken any place, Watson is empowered by us to take them there," the owners said.

As a result it was believed the Lord Talbot would soon remove the party either to Reykjavik, Iceland, or to Aberdeen.

Means of leaving here had presented a serious problem to the eight adventures, since no Danish ship is scheduled to leave the coast before next year, owing to the rapidly forming ice.

At the same time, with food as scarce as it always would have been under opinion of authorities, the party to remain, and reason the Danish government prepared to send a ship for Hutchinsons if the Lord Talbot found itself unable to transport them.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Early to Go

If you feel any and such and the world looks pink, don't swallow a lot of cathartic mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you naturally sweet and buoyant and full of motion. For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a more movement doesn't get to the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just hangs in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blotches. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned. It takes these good, old CANTHAR'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They cleanse your bowels, harmonize your digestive system, and when it comes to making the bile flow freely. But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Cantor's Little Liver Pills. Look for the small Cantor's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Beware of imitations. See at all stores. © 1932 G. M. Co.

THE CIGARETTE THAT'S Milder
THE CIGARETTE THAT Tastes Better

Training Period Starts In Ohio's Colleges

Baseball Standings

By International News Service.

With high hopes and aching muscles, approximately 400 Ohio collegiate football players exited themselves from co-eds, candy and cigarettes today and commenced a 10-week training grind intended to carry them to fame and glory on the gridiron this fall.

Ohio university, Miami, Ohio Wesleyan, Mount Union, Wittenberg, Capital, Wooster, Akron, Ashland, Heidelberg, Denison, and Xavier started practice Monday as the Ohio conference and the Buckeye Athletic association officially opened their training season.

By Thursday footballs will be zooming through the air and coaches will be barking their sharp commands on all of the state's 37 collegiate gridirons. A few squads did not hold practice yesterday.

BEGIN SEPT. 23
Sept. 23 and 24 are dates scheduled in most colleges for officially opening the playing season.

Ohio university, Ohio Wesleyan and Mt. Union stood out prominently in reports of the first practices. Their coaches—Don Peden, George Gauthier and Harry Gertz respectively—immediately started severe conditioning exercises and began shaping their prospective lineups.

Although the weather was warm in many places, and hot in others, coaches sent the athletes through long workouts after assigning uniforms and lecturing about training requirements.

First reports from the various training camps follow:

ATHENS—Finding his Ohio university squad of 47 candidates in excellent condition, Coach Don Peden plunged to work at once by trying new lineup combinations in the hope of lessening the damage caused by loss due to graduation.

Snyder, a former tackle, was sent to halfback and showed speed at running with the ball. Willoughby, a back, was sent to Snyder's place on the line.

DICKERSON ABSENT

DELAWARE—Walter Dickerson, star Ohio Wesleyan halfback, failed to appear when 50 candidates answered the first call of Coach George Gauthier. The downtown coaches who assembled to watch the workout were admittedly worried. No explanation was given for his absence. It was hoped he will return later in the week.

ALLIANCE—Harry Gertz, new head coach, and "Mike" Marsh, new assistant coach, took charge of 80 athletes who turned out for the inaugural at Mount Union. After looking over the squad, the coaches appraised it as being "heavy but green."

OXFORD—Enthusiastic at the chances of a good team under a new coach, 50 candidates reported to Frank Wilton, who was acquired for Miami from "Pop" Warner, celebrated Pacific coast coach. Miami has 14 letter men, all of whom reported. Twice-daily practice will be held until Thursday.

WOOSTER WEAKENED

WOOSTER—Coach L. C. Boles searched his Wooster squad for sophomore stars to replace Jack Frost, fullback, Clint Gattshall, lineman, and Herbert Foley, husky tackle, who did not return to practice. Intensive signal practice was planned.

TIFFIN—Twenty hopeful sophomores and 16 veterans responded to the practice call at Heidelberg by Coach Ted Turvey. Half a dozen veterans did not report, including Ed Zupfel, big Oak Harbor tackle, and Curtis Schuler, Akron end. They are expected later.

AKRON—Coach Howard Blair was pessimistic about his line after looking over the 40 candidates who reported at Akron university. Whitey Dreisbach, Fulton Mahan, Lloyd Moyer, Bill Daniels, George Myers and Verne Oldham returned for backfield duty, assuring good ball-carrying.

35 AT XAVIER

CINCINNATI—Coach Joe Meyer told the Xavier squad he would hold his list to 35 candidates due to a heavy and difficult schedule. Fifty reported at the University of Cincinnati.

ASHLAND—Blocking practice was started at once at Ashland when 13 sophomores and seven letter men reported.

COLUMBUS—Capital's largest squad in several seasons' 30 huskies, worked out in a heavy rain.

Reach Two Century Marks Beating Cleveland.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—With the American League pennant clutched by the Yankees, the matamoras heaved a sigh of relief today and turned their undivided attention to the Chicago Cubs in the National league race. Although getting no better than a Mexican standoff in their twin bill with the Giants yesterday, the Cubs increased their lead to 5 1-2 games while the Pirates were being whitewashed by Ed Brandt of the Boston Braves, 3 to 0. If the Pirates should win all of their thirteen remaining contests, the Cubs must win eight out of twelve to make it impossible for Pittsburgh to tie them.

In clinching their seventh pennant, the Yanks carved a new niche in baseball's hall of fame for their manager, Joe McCarthy. The former Cub pilot is the first man in the history of the game to manage a pennant winner in both major leagues.

The Yanks also hung up a "double century" mark. They registered their 100th victory of the year and went through their 100th consecutive game since they last were shut out on Aug. 2, 1921.

CALL GRIDDERS

Where Air Crash Killed Three

Members of a rescue party are shown searching the charred ruins of the transport plane that crashed in the Delaware Mountains, 75 miles from El Paso, Texas, for the bodies of three men who lost their lives in the fire which followed the crash. Lower photo shows the sole survivor, George A. Davidson, of California, being borne from the scene of the tragedy after his rescue. The dead are: Pilot W. J. Robbins, Co-Pilot F. W. Briggs and Victor Eilman of St. Louis, a passenger.

COW'S TIME WORTH LESS THAN KEEPER

"Preparation of Feeds for Dairy Cows" is the title of Bulletin 502 recently released for distribution by the Ohio Experiment Station. In this bulletin, written by C. C. Hayden, C. F. Monroe and A. E. Perkins, of the Dairy Department the results of several experiments on preparing feeds, especially roughages, are given. Is it necessary or advisable to grind hay for the dairy cow? Should the grain be fed mixed with the ground hay as an aid to stimulating milk flow? Finally, will a system of processing the roughage which consists of grinding, soaking with water, and "predigesting" with a "Converter" be desirable? All these questions are answered by experimental results in Bulletin 502.

The grinding of hay is a dusty and disagreeable task, likewise, the handling of the ground roughage incidental to processing is disagreeable and laborious. The "Converter" materials used in such processing systems are expensive. Do such materials give to the feed an added value? The "Converter" used in the above mentioned experiments proved no better than a mixture of corn and oats.

From the findings presented in this bulletin, the Dairy Department does not recommend that roughages be ground for dairy cows or that the grain be mixed with the ground roughages. It appears that the cow is capable of handling her own feed and that the dairyman is wasting his time in trying to save the cow's time.

PUNCH DIET FOR REDS

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich.—Use of "hard fists" to break up Communist disorders and demonstrations, was advocated at the Michigan convention of police chiefs here, during discussion of probable Communist activities during the coming winter. Communism will gain in Michigan this winter, unless there is a sharp upturn in employment, police chiefs predicted. Riots, hunger marches and other disorders were forecast.

RAYON WEEK IN GERMANY

BERLIN—Germany is to have a "rayon week" from October 1 to 7, in order to make the population "rayon conscious." All towns of 30,000 and over will take part in the campaign to promote sales of all products consisting entirely or partly of rayon.

ASK CITY JUNIORS TO ENTER CONTEST

LONDON, Sept. 14.—Councils of the Junior O. U. A. M. in Franklin, Fairfield, Pickaway, Fayette, Clinton, Hocking, Montgomery, Greene, Union, Clark, Champaign, Warren, Miami, Athens, and Madison counties have been asked to enter teams of old fiddlers and harmonica players for a series of contests to be held at the outing of the order at the Madison County Fair Grounds at London September 18. It is expected that fully 8,000 persons will attend the affair, and the public has been invited.

Among the speakers at the outing will be C. H. Kernan, Tiffin, superintendent of the Jr. O. U. A. M. Home, who was recently advanced to the position of state counselor; Senator W. A. Clark, Urbana, the state secretary, and Mrs. Mary Hazel Floyd, Portsmouth, state vice counselor of the Daughters of America.

A concert is to be given by the Boys Band of the Jr. O. U. A. M. Home at Tiffin.

PALATKA, Fla.—C. L. Clemmons, 45-year-old hitch-hiker, "thumbed" a ride from Deputy Sheriff Gilbert Yates, who recognized Clemmons as a fugitive and drove him straight to jail. Clemmons was charged with first degree murder in the slaying last Christmas eve of John W. Malone at a still near here.

ARMOR BALKS HORNETS

READING, Mass.—A gas mask, rubber gloves, a heavy rubber coat and hip boots were employed in giving a coat of paint to a flagpole atop a belfry on Fire Engine No. 2 station here. The reason was a nest of hornets at the base of the pole. But the armor proved too thick for the stinging insects, and the painter reported nary a sting.

"THAT LITTLE GAME" — Honest, But No One Believes It

MRS. DAVIS continues her education

You know Mrs. Davis—the little bride. Two weeks before her marriage she graduated from college with high honors. But in one respect her education has been neglected.

Yesterday, for instance, she picked up the telephone and called the grocer. "I would like," she said politely, "to have some things sent up. A bag of flour—three packages of breakfast food—one can of baking-powder—six bottles of ginger ale—a pound of coffee—a package of—what's that? Oh. Why, I'm sure I don't know what brand. Just any kind, I guess!"

No wonder the storekeeper interrupted her. He gets few orders like that nowadays. For wise housewives buy things by name. Not merely groceries, but kitchenware and piece-goods and household appliances; shoes and shirts and garden seeds; all the thousand and one things they need.

Mrs. Davis will complete her education. She will learn to study the advertisements in the daily paper, and to keep herself informed as to qualities and prices. She will take her place alongside thousands of other women as the efficient purchasing agent of her home.

Read the advertising columns of this paper regularly. They are your guide-posts to safe buying.

LATE CROPS SUFFER FROM NO MOISTURE

Late crops in Ohio suffered from insufficient moisture and periods of hot weather during August and on September 1 the estimates of growing crops were somewhat less than one month earlier according to A. R. Tuttle, Agricultural Statistician.

Corn. Many corn fields which promised good yields were burned and ripened prematurely due to the hot dry weather during August. Corn cutting which began the last of August was about two or three weeks ahead of normal. The September 1 forecast was for 33.5 bushels per acre compared with 38.0 bushels last month and the 10 year average of 38.0 bushels. Total production is placed at 118,590,000 bushels which is 12 per cent below the forecast last month and 7 per cent below the 5 year average.

Winter Wheat. The winter crop was estimated to yield 20.5 bushels per acre or 4.0 bushels above average with a total production of 31,939,000 bushels or 19 per cent above average.

OATS LIGHT

Oats produced rather light yields especially in the southern half of the state where drought following seeding caused slow and poor germination and a large number of weeds in many fields. Yield per acre is estimated at 27.5 bushels per acre or 7.5 bushels below the 10-year average with an indicated production of 46,942,000 bushels which is only three-fourths of last year's crop and 37 per cent below average.

Barley like oats was a light crop with yield per acre placed at 20.0 bushels which is 5.1 bushels below average. Production at 2,000,000 bushels is only one-half the 5-year average.

Buckwheat condition dropped from 78 per cent on August 1 to 64 per cent on September 1 and the forecast now is for 330,000 bushels compared with the 5-year average of 444,000 bushels.

Potato prospects were not as promising on September 1 as one month earlier due to the dry weather.

"I was in poor health from female troubles. I heard different women speak about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I also read the booklets. Happy Screen Constellation ther. The present estimate is for 10,200,000 bushels which is about average.

Rarely do we see such an aggregation of funny people in one group as that presented here. Photo, made on the occasion of a film premiere in Hollywood, shows, left to right, Robert Woolsey, cigar-chewing gagster; Jimmy Durante, better known as "Schnozzle"; Lupe Velez and her sister, Queenie; and Bert Wheeler, Woolsey's team mate. "Schnozzle" seems to be having a whale of a time.

Tame Hay production at 2,429,000 tons is nearly one-fourth smaller than last year due to a decreased acreage and smaller yield per acre. The 5-year average production is 3,161,000 tons.

Sugar Beets. It is estimated that 25,000 acres of beets will be harvested this year with a production forecast of 215,000 tons. The beets made good growth early in the season but made practically no growth during August because of the dry weather.

Soybeans. The preliminary estimate of acreage from which beans will be harvested is 25,000 compared with 28,000 in 1931. Production forecast is for 350,000 bushels.

Tobacco. The burley tobacco crop is placed at 12,240,000 pounds; Cigar Leaf 21,547,000 pounds and Miscellaneous Eastern Ohio 600,000 pounds.

FRUITS LOWER

Fruits: Continued drought caused a further dropping of fruits and the hot weather together with the drought is causing premature ripening with correspondingly undersize fruit. The apple crop forecast is now 4,851,000 bushels or two-thirds of an average crop. The commercial apple crop is shown at 478,000 barrels. Peaches promise 792,000 bushels or about one-half the average production. Pears are shown at 319,000 bushels compared with an average crop of 351,000 bushels. Grapes at 29,426 tons promise one-third better than an average production.

Milk Production. Milk production per cow in herds of Ohio Crop Reporters on September 1 was 14.7 pounds, which was about 6 per cent less than at the same time last year and also the 1926-1930 average. In addition to the continued relatively poor pasture condition this decreased production is partially caused by there being a little over one per cent more cows dry this year than for either last year or the 5-year average.

Say Bern's Will Is Missing Today

Safety Deposit Box Found Empty; Two Documents Name Miss Millette.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 14.—Search was continued today for the last will of Paul Bern, film executive, and self-slain husband of Jean Harlow, screen star, after the document was declared to be missing from his safety deposit box in a Culver City bank.

It had been hoped that the will would be found to throw light upon the motive for Bern's suicide in his "Honeymoon Home" more than a week ago.

Miss Irene Harrison, Bern's secretary for six years, said she had put the will in the box. Miss Harlow was declared by an attorney who drew up the will recently to have been named the principal beneficiary.

Two documents found in the box, however, each provided an annuity of $2,500 for Miss Dorothy Millette, "Phantom Woman" in Bern's life.

One "will" made bequests to six prominent motion picture actresses whose names were withheld by those that inspected the documents.

INSULL LOSSES FEARED GREAT

Men, Women Depositors Stand To Lose All Savings In Company.

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—Men and women who felt fortunate in being able to invest their money in Insull enterprises three and four years ago, together with other creditors of the Insull organization, stand to lose a grand total of two billion dollars.

This was the disclosure made to International News Service today by a man familiar with the workings of the now bankrupt utilities network for many years. He said:

"The $226,510,977 deficit disclosed by the audit of the books of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., is less than one-fourth of the total deficit of all the Insull companies considered as a whole.

"Counting the shrinkage of values of Insull securities in the hands of the public, the loss will total around $2,000,000,000."

Hope has been abandoned that even the debenture holders of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., might recover part of their losses. Experts pointed out that the company's total assets, $27,473,364, are far exceeded by bank loans alone, amounting to $41,585,020.

ROME, Sept. 14.—In preparation for the landing of the monoplane American Nurse, expected around midnight, Gen. Balbo, in charge of military aviation, ordered the military field at Ciampino, instead of the commercial airport at Littorio, to be lighted tonight.

This is a signal honor for the American flyers as it is the first time in history that civilian aviators have been received at Ciampino.

STUDENTS' EXPENSES CUT

COLUMBUS, O.—It will cost the fresman who enters Ohio State University this fall from $60 to $75 less for his first year in college than it did the new student a year ago, according to a survey made by the offices of the entrance examiner and dean of men. The savings are made possible by reductions in board and room prices.

George R. Hutchinson, his wife, two daughters and four companions, Peter Redpatch, Gerald Altftilisch, Joseph Ruff and Norman Alley, suffered from the extreme cold while they were marooned.

Hutchinson was so severely affected that he had to retire to bed when he arrived here. No fears were felt for him, however.

His plane, pounded by waves after the enforced landing, was a complete wreck. Parts of it were salvaged and taken aboard the ship with the refugees.

It was learned from Aberdeen, Scotland, that the owners of the Lord Talbot have instructed Watson to proceed with his fishing cruise, although empowering him to take the rescued flyers away from Greenland.

"Should the Hutchinsons wish eventually to be taken any place, Watson is empowered by us to take them there," the owners said.

As a result it was believed the Lord Talbot would soon remove the party either to Reykjavik, Iceland, or to Aberdeen.

Means of leaving here had presented a serious problem to the eight adventures, since no Danish ship is scheduled to leave the coast before next year, owing to the rapidly forming ice.

At the same time, with food as scarce as it always is here, it would have been unwise, in the opinion of authorities, to permit the party to remain, and for that reason the Danish government was prepared to send a ship for the Hutchinsons if the Lord Talbot found itself unable to transport them.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Karin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Remotest wholesalers, 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

War Debt Welchers

A GAIN Europe would like to break a gentlemen's agreement. When Washington accepted the invitation to attend a world economic conference it was agreed not to discuss war debts or tariffs. Since then the debtor nations have talked of nothing but war-debt cancellations.

Must Europe be told again that America cannot cancel the war debts? Unless the debtors nations pay the taxpayers of the United States must, for Washington borrowed the money from the people at home and issued bonds as security. It must redeem the bonds when they fall due.

The former allies misrepresent when they plead that they are impoverished by the annual installments on the debts, for those payments represent but 2 per cent of their budget. Budgets are never balanced by a single minor item. Our debtors lost their one and only argument for debt cancellation when America partly through their devices, crashed upon economic shoals. Today the American people are in no better position to pay those debts than the borrowers are.

Moreover, what license have the French and British to ask for charity from Uncle Sam. Have they forgotten the fancy prices they collected for the American cemeteries in Flanders and for transporting our soldiers across the ocean?

German Armaments

GERMANY'S sudden demand for equality of armaments with other first-class powers was anticipated as far back as the negotiations which culminated in the Versailles treaty and the loss of that equality. None was so naive as to suppose that the German people would submit for all time to these severe peace terms.

The German note restates in moderate and restrained language the German thesis that the disarmament forced on Germany by the Versailles treaty was only provisional and conditional, pending a general reduction by the other nations that would leave Germany in a position relatively as secure as the others. So if it is regarded with some anxiety in Washington as endangering successful resumption of the armament reduction negotiations at Geneva it is rather because of the unfortunate tone taken by General von Schleicher in the note or the language of the Berlin note.

Berlin's threat to arm in any case and to withdraw from Geneva is probably only a bluff to obtain two immediate concessions—reduction of the 12-year enlistment period forced on her army and permission of conscription of a militia for border and coast defense. Germany is just as eager for arms reduction as America.

Washington has little to say on the question because the United States has nothing at stake. France, the traditional enemy of the German nation, is directly concerned and probably will determine the verdict. Unless she desires competitive armaments and war she will grant some concessions to German national feeling.

Market Values

UP to a certain point in June of this year the dealers in futures were guided by the presumption that long-declining securities and commodities markets could have no bottom. The logic of such reasoning was unsound, because it implying that property of intrinsic worth would presently be given away.

Had the market decline continued for six more months at the rate of downward progress governing the movement of the last two and a half years it would have attained the vanishing point next January. But it did not continue. Last month shares listed on the board of the New York Stock Exchange gained in value $7,287,742.341. Their July and August gains aggregated 78 per cent and cancelled all losses for the preceding six months.

Present quotations do not necessarily reflect true values more nearly than the high or low prices did. The gains are not based on increased earning power of the shares, for as a matter of fact some of the corporations were earning more during the bare market than the bull market set in. But when the investing public pours more than seven billions into securities in two months it does reflect confidence in the fundamental soundness of the corporations involved and in future business and investment prospects. Millions of investors are warning that the depression has passed the crisis and that the stock market reached rock bottom last June.

MURDER of the NIGHT CLUB LADY

THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY

BY ANTHONY ABBOT

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY COWLEY-FRIEDLE INC., DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Despite the police guard placed in her home by Commissioner Thatcher, Lola Carewe, suspected "higher-up" of a jewel thief ring, mysteriously murdered. Dr. Hugh Baldwin gives heart failure as the cause of death. Those present at the time, besides Colt and his aides, were Lola's mother, Mrs. Carewe; the butler, maid, and Vincent Rowland, an attorney. Colt feels the young man whose photograph adorns Lola's dresser—and whose identity she refused to reveal beyond his first name, "Basil"—is connected with the mystery. At the mention of his name, Mrs. Carewe becomes hysterical, saying Lola was a cruel beast and never loved Basil. Christine Quires, Lola's guest, cannot be located, although the elevator boy claims she returned around midnight with her escort, Guy Everett, and Colt found the bag she carried. A clue to Lola's murder, in the form of a small wooden box, is picked up under her window. Chung, the butler, reveals that Everett had threatened Lola and that Rowland, the lawyer, warned her she was playing a dangerous game and would be caught. Eunice, the maid, discloses that Christine quarreled with Mrs. Carewe about money the afternoon of the murder. Mrs. Carewe told Christine to see Lola about it and the latter replied, "All right—if Lola lives that long." The maid further states that both Lola and Christine were afraid of Guy Everett. Lola had induced him to make poor investments. And Eunice also adds that Dr. Baldwin told Lola his life would be ruined if Lola told what she knew. Guy Everett arrives. He claims he left Christine at the elevator at 12:15, and then went for a ride on the Motor Parkway, alone, returning home after three. A card with Everett's phone number is found among the maid's effects. She confesses that he paid her to report the happenings in the apartment. Mrs. Carewe and Miss Lox, Colt's operative, come upon Christine's body in Lola's room. Colt wonders where the body was hidden as it is soaking wet. Dr. Baldwin again reports death due to heart failure.

As we drew back, puzzled and disconcerted, Dr. Multooler added: "You will want to know, Mr. Colt, that these marks were put on her throat—after death!"

Colt turned suddenly back to look incredulously into the eyes of the Assistant Medical Examiner. I could see that Multooler's announcement seemed to Colt of the most extraordinary importance. Baffled for a moment, the Commissioner seemed suddenly to catch a gleam of light. Something was revealing in his mind; what Multooler had said gave him a clue and filled him with that intellectual excitement which is emotion raised to its most dangerous power.

But at the time I could not see the clue, nor guess what it was that had so moved Thatcher Colt. He walked slowly back to the bed and bending down close to the neck he stared long and thoughtfully at those fantastic streaks and blotches.

At last he rose and addressed Doctor Multooler. "You will send down both bodies to the Morgue and have a full report for me by morning," the Commissioner requested. "It seems to be murder, gentlemen, with a superior technic. We shall have to work fast. I am relying on you, Multooler, to discover exactly how those girls died."

"I will do my best," promised the big physician earnestly. A few minutes later, two men in white coats carried away all that remained of Lola Carewe and Christine Quires, wrapped naked in sheets. Colt turned again to Flynn.

"Will you get hold of Adams and Thompson, and have them bring their machines up here?" he asked suddenly. Flynn closed one eye in great excitement. "Machines—are you going to try that, chief?" he gasped.

"Try what?" barked Dougherty. But Flynn was already on the telephone, and Colt was at the threshold of Lola's room, where Doctor Baldwin and Detective Dorothy Lox had been attending the stricken woman.

"If Mrs. Carewe is conscious, I shall have to speak to her now," announced Colt grimly. Baldwin seemed about to protest. Then he shrugged his shoulders helplessly.

"Yes—that is all right," he assented, and without another word the doctor left the apartment, shadowed as before. Note paper in hand, I sat beside the bed in Lola's room as Colt began again to question the pale and haggard Mrs. Carewe, who lay there staring with miserable eyes blindly up at the ceiling.

"Now, Mrs. Carewe," Colt began quietly, laying his hand kindly on the old lady's head, "tell me in a few words what happened just now in your room?"

The old woman struggled upward and rested her weight on her elbow. "It was awful!" she rumbled, her voice deep in her throat. "I had felt hysterical—after you asked me all those questions last time. I lay down in my room. I was restless. I couldn't sleep in my own bed. I got up and went into Lola's room. I went in and turned on the lights. Then I saw—I screamed—"

Here the pitiful old creature broke down and wept. "I shall be the next to go," she groaned. "And I won't care—if I can only be with Lola. Who else is there now?"

"We are all going to look out for you," promised the Commissioner soothingly. "If you will help us." "What can I do?"

"Tell me everything—even your suspicions." "I will. Before God I will!" "Where did Christine hide in this apartment?"

"She must have come home before you reached here." "We feel sure of that, too. But where could she have hidden?"

(To Be Continued Tomorrow, Copyright 1931, by Cowley-Friedle, Inc. Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Blank look was on the old woman's face, as she realized the strange riddle which confronted us. It was as if Christine and her murderer had the power of penetrating matter, of passing silently and invisibly through walls sheathed in steel.

"I don't understand any of this," complained the old woman in a low voice. "Do you think—could it be I mean—oh, but I mustn't let myself get superstitious."

"What were you about to say?" urged the Commissioner. But the old creature obstinately shook her head.

"It doesn't matter," she insisted. "It only shows what a coward I am—but I do wonder if anybody is after me—please don't let them, Mr. Colt!"

"You will be most carefully guarded," Colt promised. "And what do you want me to do to help you?"

"Two things. Answer all my questions now—all that you can—" "Yes, sir!"

"And obey all my instructions." "I will obey—truly, Mr. Colt." "You are not to eat or drink anything prepared in this house. Miss Lox will bring you in anything that you desire."

"I will be careful to do as you say! But Mr. Colt—do you actually believe somebody is hidden, waiting to drop poison in our food?"

"I have formed no theories yet. Miss Lox will remain awake at your bedside throughout the rest of the night."

"I am glad. She is very good to me—" "At noon tomorrow she will be relieved by another woman detective. Would you like a nurse, too?"

"No—I'm all right, thanks." "You are to have no visitors—you must deny yourself to everyone—" "I will! I will!"

"I am certain, Mrs. Carewe," resumed the Commissioner soothingly, as he wiped his right hand with a handkerchief, "that you can and will help us by answering my questions—I won't take long. It is almost certain that the deaths of these two women and the threats made against Lola's life are related crimes. Not only because of justice, but for your own safety, you can steel yourself and help me by answering my questions—the more we know, the better able we are to protect you."

Whooping Cough Neglect Regarded as Dangerous

Health Authority Cautions Mothers Not to Assume This Children's Disease Is Minor—Every Caution of Prevention Is Urged.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.

United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

NOTHING is more distressing than to see a young child suffering from spasms of whooping cough. It causes real misery and, contrary to a belief held by most mothers, is a serious disease.

Never deliberately expose a child to whooping cough. He should be kept away from one who has, or is suspected of having, whooping cough. Unfortunately, it is not easy to recognize the disease in its early stage. Persistent coughing is an early sign. In the first period the disease resembles a common cold with a cough. This stage lasts about two weeks and during this time the cough becomes severe and more persistent.

Early Diagnosis Important
Early diagnosis of whooping cough is important. Its recognition prevents the spread of the disease. In addition, it hastens recovery and convalescence to begin treatment at once. When proper care and attention are given to the disease in its early stages, the dreaded complications rarely occur.

Vaccines are recommended for the prevention and cure of whooping cough. The injection is simple, painless and causes no discomfort. Its advocates claim that when given to a child before exposure to the disease, whooping cough may be prevented.

Though there exists a great deal of skepticism as to the value of the vaccine, its use should not be denied. If it proves its worth it will be of particular value during an epidemic of this disease. Then it will be given to all children in the community, regardless of whether they have or have not been exposed.

I have spoken rather doubtfully regarding this vaccine. I hope it may be all that is claimed for it and have no reason to doubt its value. Certainly it can do no harm and if it proves helpful in one case out of a dozen, it is well worth while.

Some children suffer mild attacks, while others have severe and prolonged attacks of coughing. The coughing lowers the vitality. The child becomes weak, loses weight and becomes extremely susceptible to other respiratory infections, such as pneumonia and influenza. These are the most dreaded complications of whooping cough.

Not until recently was the cause of whooping cough determined. The germ responsible for it is known as the "bacillus of Bordet and Gengon," named after its discoverers.

To put it in simple language, this germ becomes lodged in the lining of the windpipe. As it multiplies, swelling and mucus formation result. The mucus prevents normal breathing and produces severe spasms of coughing. Later we observe the characteristic "whoop" of the disease.

The germs are carried by the saliva and the moisture expelled by the cough. Contact with these secretions causes the disease to be passed from one child to another.

Some children suffer mild attacks, while others have severe and prolonged attacks of coughing. The coughing lowers the vitality. The child becomes weak, loses weight and becomes extremely susceptible to other respiratory infections, such as pneumonia and influenza. These

PICKAWAY-TWP SCHOOL NOTES

Our school began last week with a well organized program and an enrollment of 332 happy boys and girls. They have had a nice vacation and are glad to be back in school. Nine nice new, all-steel modern buses contribute no small part to the happiness of these youngsters. They make a splendid appearance, are a great deal more comfortable, and operate more economically for the taxpayers. Nine now do the work which formerly took 12, a saving of 25 per cent.

Teachers and enrollments by grades are as follows: 1, Faye Wood Porter, 36; 2, Ruth Young Denman, 28; 3, Thelma A. O'Hara, 30; 4, Kathleen M. Dilsaver, 26; 5, Helen L. Hittler, 36; 6, Mildred A. Shaner, 28; 7, C. M. Vanzant, 45; 8, Mary Lukens Johnson, 27. Total elementary enrollment, 256. Freshmen, 19; Sophomores, 18; Juniors, 13; Seniors, 26. Total high school, 76. High school teachers: E. H. Althaus, commercial; G. D. Bradley, agriculture and shop (Smith-Hughes); Mary C. Braun, English, French, home economics; E. C. Carpenter, coach, science, mathematics; I. E. Seitz, Latin; Mildred O. Wertman, English, history, social science. Special teachers: Mary A. Radcliffe, music and art; Floyd Elliott, violin and cello; Edward Morrison, clarinet, drums, saxophone; Frank Todhunter, trumpet, trombone, mellophone, etc.

LOGAN ELM FUND

Our pupils and teachers have a very special interest in Logan Elm and want to do all in our power to help save it from the ravages of disease. Our subscription to the Save-Logan-Elm fund is being raised and will be forwarded to The Circleville Herald in a few days.

TEACHERS AND BUILDING CUSTODIANS ANNUAL PICNIC

Wednesday evening after school the teachers and building custodians are gathering at Logan Elm for their annual autumn picnic. See our news letter next week for the details.

ALUMNI AT COLLEGE

Among our graduates who will attend the Ohio State University this year are Charles Boggs, Forrest Brown, Robert Bush, Donald Dodd, Ansel Estell, Floyd Graves, Mary E. Hare, Mary Ruth Tolbert, Wells Wilson, Lester Wolford and Julius Wright. Marvin Hainsworth will attend the Columbus Y. M. C. A. school. Others may attend some higher institution of learning, but these are all we have heard about to date. This is a good time to get a college education, if it is at all possible to finance it. Expenses are lower than usual and the students' time is not very valuable so far as wage earning is concerned. One had better improve one's time by going to college, if possible, and be prepared for the competition that is certain to come with the return of more prosperous times. "Education is an ornament in prosperity, and a refuge in adversity."—Aristotle.

THIEVES VISIT MR. SMITH'S RESIDENCE

Last Sunday evening while Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Smith were in Circleville thieves broke in and stole many articles of value including a valuable watch belonging to Lee, a gun, some money, two suit cases, considerable clothing, groceries, and numerous other articles. An immediate call was sent to the sheriff's office. The Smiths are our building custodians and live in the dwelling on our campus.

ATHLETICS

Our interscholastic program will open on our grounds Friday afternoon with Salt Creek as our guests. The boys will play baseball and the girls, recreation ball. Next week we will visit Washington. These games are a part of our physical education program and are of value to the participants and to the communities represented in various ways.

HITLER GAINS PRESS SEATS

BERLIN—Admission cards to the press gallery of the Prussian diet will be issued to newspapers in proportion to the number of deputies of the political parties represented by those newspapers. The Speaker Hans Kerrl, a National Socialist, has announced. Since the National Socialists are now the strongest party in the Diet, Kerrl said that the Hitlerites ought to have more reporters in the gallery than newspapers of any other political party.

The Daily Horoscope

Wednesday, Sept. 14, 1932

Partly favorable aspects are found during the morning hours of today and the evening is to be most favorable in a general way, according to astrology. Therefore, the earlier part of the day does not favor attention to important affairs nor for business dealings with those in high position.

It is not considered a lucky day to increase one's chances for success, gain promotion, or seek assistance from influential persons for the minds of people will be upset and disorganizing.

According to astrology, conditions change considerably for the better toward the last half of the day which will show an increase general business and industrial activity. Good for literary and educational matters as well as things of a mechanical and constructive nature.

Labor troubles and other unsatisfactory conditions in Spain, Portugal, Australia and America are due to end the latter part of September, according to prophecy. The world's depression is declared to be over at the close of the year, is the prophecy of many astrologers. The ending of third and last wave of the depression is marked for November 20th, of this year. The second wave of depression ended August 11, the day wheat reached its highest mark since the earlier part of last March. President Hoover made his speech on this day; One hundred thousand miners began to work also steel workers. These and many other changes were made on August 11, the ending of the second wave of the world's greatest depression.

Children born on this day, are very original and inventive and are great readers in later years. They are seldom found to be in want.

War Debt Welchers

A GAIN Europe would like to break a gentlemen's agreement. When Washington accepted the invitation to attend a world economic conference it was agreed not to discuss war debts or tariffs. Since then the debtor nations have talked of nothing but war-debt cancellations.

Must Europe be told again that America cannot cancel the war debts? Unless the debtors nations pay the taxpayers of the United States must, for Washington borrowed the money from the people at home and issued bonds as security. It must redeem the bonds when they fall due.

The former allies misrepresent when they plead that they are impoverished by the annual installment on the debts, for those payments represent but 2 per cent of their budget. Budgets are never balanced by a single minor item. Our debtors lost their one and only argument for debt cancellation when America partly through their devices, crashed upon economic shoals. Today the American people are in no better position to pay those debts than the borrowers are.

Moreover, what license have the French and British to ask for charity from Uncle Sam. Have they forgotten the fancy prices they collected for the American cemeteries in Flanders and for transporting our soldiers across the ocean?

German Armaments

GERMANY's sudden demand for equality of armaments with other first-class powers was anticipated as far back as the negotiations which culminated in the Versailles treaty and the loss of that equality that the German people would submit for all time to the severe peace terms.

The German note restates in moderate and restrained language the German thesis that the disarmament forced on Germany by the Versailles treaty was only provisional and conditional, pending a general reduction by the other nations that would leave Germany in a position relatively as secure as the others. So if it is regarded with some anxiety in Washington as endangering successful resumption of the armament reduction negotiations at Geneva it is rather because of the unfortunate tone taken by General von Schleicher in the contents of the language of the Berlin note.

Berlin's threat to arm in any case and to withdraw from Geneva is probably only a bluff to obtain two immediate concessions—reduction of the 12-year enlistment period forced on her army and permission of conscription of a militia for border and coast defense. Germany is just as eager for arms reduction as America is to say on the question because the United States has nothing at stake. France, the traditional enemy of the German nation, is directly concerned and probably will determine the verdict. Unless she desires competitive armaments and war she will grant some concessions to German national feeling.

Market Values

UP to a certain point in June of this year the dealers in futures were guided by the presumption that long-declining securities and commodities markets could have no bottom. The logic of such reasoning was unsound, because it implying that property of intrinsic worth would presently be given away.

Had the market decline continued for six more months at the rate of downward progress governing the movement of the last two and a half years it would have attained the vanishing point next January. But it did not continue.

Last month's shares listed on the board of the New York Stock Exchange gained in value $7,287,742.341. Their July and August gains aggregated 75 per cent and cancelled all losses for the preceding six months.

Present quotations do not necessarily reflect true values more so than the high or low prices did. The game is not based on increased earning power of the shares, for as a matter of fact some of the corporations were earning more during the bare market than they have earned since the bull market set in. But when the investing public pours more than seven billions into securities in two months it does reflect confidence in the fundamental soundness of the corporations involved and in future business and investment prospects. Millions of investors are watering the crisis and that the stock market reached rock bottom last June.

"MURDER of the NIGHT CLUB LADY"

THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY

BY ANTHONY ABBOT

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY CONVIC-FRIEDE INC. DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Despite the police guard placed in her home by Commissioner Thatcher, Lola Carewe, suspected "higher-up" of a jewel thief ring, is mysteriously murdered. Dr. Hugh Baldwin gives heart failure as the cause of death. Those present at the time, besides Lola and her aides, were Lola's mother, Mrs. Carewe; the butler, maid, and Vincent Rowland, an attorney. Colt feels the young man whose photograph adorns Lola's dresser—and whose identity she refused to reveal beyond his first name, "Basil"—is connected with the mystery. At the mention of his name, Mrs. Carewe becomes hysterical, saying Lola was a cruel beast and never loved Basil. Christine Quires, Lola's guest, cannot be located, although the elevator boy claims she returned around midnight with her escort, Guy Everett, and Colt found the bag she carried. A clue to Lola's murder, in the form of a small wooden box, is picked up under her window. Chung, the butler, reveals that Everett had threatened Lola and that Rowland, the lawyer, warned her she was playing a dangerous game and would be caught. Eunice, the maid, discloses that Christine quarreled with Mrs. Carewe about money the afternoon of the murder. Mrs. Carewe told Christine to see Lola about it and the latter replied, "All right—if Lola lives that long." The maid further states that both Lola and Christine were afraid of Guy Everett. Lola had induced him to make poor investments. And Eunice also adds that Dr. Baldwin told Lola that her life would be ruined if Lola told what she knew. Guy Everett arrives. He claims he left Christine at the elevator at 12:15, and then went for a ride on the Motor Parkway, alone, returning home after three. A card with Everett's phone number is found among the maid's effects. She confesses that he paid her to report the happenings in the apartment. Mrs. Carewe and Miss Lox, Colt's operative, come upon Christine's body in Lola's room. Colt wonders where the body was hidden as it is soaking wet. Dr. Baldwin again reports death due to heart failure.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

AT this stage of the inquiry it did look to me as if the mystery were unsolvable. Here was a body drowned to the skin. Rigor mortis had set in—Christine had been dead for hours; she had been dead while Lola was still alive. What could have happened? Thatcher, Colt confronted Doctor Multooler with a sombre air. "Well, doctor, this also looks like heart trouble?" Multooler rubbed the red front of his nose with a pudgy forefinger. "As a matter of fact, Mr. Colt, it would look like heart trouble—shows all the symptoms, just like the other one did—except for one thing!" "What's that?" barked Dougherty. The Medical Examiner's eyes were fixed in a deeply significant stare on Thatcher Colt. "I'd like to show you something," he said, in a nasal and sepulchral meaningful voice. Without a word, he followed Doctor Multooler to the bedside where lay the body of Christine. Lifting the head in the palm of one hand, Doctor Multooler pointed with the fingers of the other to the nape of the neck. "See those marks?" "We did see them. They were unmistakable on the dead young flesh—welts that scarred the white skin, long, fan-like streaks and blue, bruised depressions. I confess I shivered at the sight of these marks on the neck and throat and under the chin of Christine. Had he marks been made by human fingers? Multooler believed not. But he had no alternative to suggest. After many years at his gruesome task, he could not think what object or what creature could have inflicted those monstrous marks.

As we drew back, puzzled and disconcerted, Dr. Multooler added: "You will want to know, Mr. Colt, that these marks were put on her throat—after death!"

Colt turned suddenly back to look incredulously into the eyes of the Assistant Medical Examiner. I could see that Multooler's announcement seemed to Colt of the most extraordinary importance. Baffled for a moment, the Commissioner seemed suddenly to catch a gleam of light. Something was revolving in his mind; what Multooler had said gave him a clue and filled him with that intellectual excitement which is emotion raised to its most dangerous power.

But at the time I could not see the clue, nor guess what it was that had so moved Thatcher Colt. He walked slowly back to the bed and bending down close to the neck he stared long and thoughtfully at those fantastic streaks and blotches.

At last he rose and addressed Doctor Multooler. "You will send down both bodies to the Morgue and have a full report for me by morning," the Commissioner requested. "It seems to me murder, gentlemen, with a superior technique. We shall have to work fast. I am relying on you, Multooler, to discover exactly how those girls died."

"I will do my best," promised the big physician earnestly.

A few minutes later, two men in white coats carried away all that remained of Lola Carewe and Christine Quires, wrapped naked in sheets. Colt turned again to Flynn. "Will you get hold of Adams and Thompson, and have them bring their machines up here?" he asked suddenly.

Flynn closed one eye in great excitement. "Machines—are you going to try that, chief?" he gasped.

"Try what?" barked Dougherty. But Flynn was already on the telephone, and Colt was at the threshold of Lola's room, where Doctor Baldwin and Detective Dorothy Lox had been attending the stricken mother.

"If Mrs. Carewe is conscious, I shall have to speak to her now," announced Colt grimly. Baldwin seemed about to protest. Then he shrugged his shoulders helplessly.

"Yes—that is all right," he assented, and without another word the doctor left the apartment, shadowed as before. Note paper in hand, I sat beside the bed in Lola's room as Colt began again to question the pale and haggard Mrs. Carewe, who lay there staring with miserable eyes blindly up at the ceiling.

"Now, Mrs. Carewe," Colt began quietly, laying his hand kindly on the old lady's head, "tell me in a few words what happened just now in your room?"

The old woman struggled upward and rested her weight on her elbow. "It was awful!" she rumbled, her voice deep in her throat. "I had felt hysterical—after you asked me all those questions last time. I lay down in my room I was restless. I couldn't sleep in my own bed I got up and went into Lola's room. I went in and turned on the lights. Then I saw—I screamed—"

Here the pitiful old creature broke down and wept. "I shall be the next to go," she groaned. "And I won't care—if I can only be with Lola. Who else is there now?"

"We are all going to look out for you," promised the Commissioner soothingly. "If you will help us."

"What can I do?"

"Tell me everything—even your suspicions."

"I will. Before God I will!"

"Where did Christine hide in this apartment?"

"She must have come home before you reached here."

"We feel sure of that, too. But where could she have hidden?"

A blank look was on the old woman's face, as she realized the strange riddle which confronted us. It was as if Christine and her murderer had the power of penetrating matter, of passing silently and invisibly through walls sheathed in steel.

"I don't understand any of this," complained the old woman in a low voice. "Do you think—could it be—I mean—oh, but I mustn't let myself get superstitious."

"What were you about to say?" urged the Commissioner.

But the old creature obstinately shook her head.

"It doesn't matter," she insisted. "It only shows what a coward I am—but I do wonder if anybody is after me—please don't let them, Mr. Colt!"

"You will be most carefully guarded," Colt promised.

"And what do you want me to do to help you?"

"Two things. Answer all my questions now—all that you can—"

"Yes, sir!"

"And obey all my instructions."

"I will obey—truly, Mr. Colt."

"You are not to eat or drink anything prepared in this house. Miss Lox will bring you in anything that you desire."

"I will be careful to do as you say! But Mr. Colt—do you actually believe somebody is hidden, waiting to drop poison in our food?"

"I have formed no theories yet. Miss Lox will remain awake at your bedside throughout the rest of the night."

"I am glad. She is very good to me."

"At noon tomorrow she will be relieved by another woman detective. Would you like a nurse, too?"

"No—I'm all right, thanks."

"You are to have no visitors—you must deny yourself to everyone."

"I will! I will!"

"I am certain, Mrs. Carewe," resumed the Commissioner soothingly, as he wiped his right hand with a handkerchief, "that you can and will help us by answering my questions—I won't take long. It is almost certain that the deaths of these two women and the threats made against Lola's life are related crimes. Not only because of justice, but for your own safety, you can steel yourself and help me by answering my questions—the more we know, the better able we are to protect you."

After a moment Mrs. Carewe whispered that she was ready.

"The full name of Lola's friend," Christine Margaret Quires."

"Her age?"

"Twenty-two."

"Where is her home?"

"In Rochester."

"With whom did she live there?"

"With her married brother, Edgar Quires. She is an orphan."

"The address?"

"It is on Onondaga Avenue—I forget the number."

"Why was Christine Quires living with you?"

"She was just here on a visit."

"How long had she been visiting you?"

"For the last three months."

"Isn't that an unusually long stay for a guest?"

"Lola liked her and wished to help her."

"Did you ever have any other guest stay with you so long?"

"No—I fancy not!"

"Was Christine intending to stay in New York permanently?"

"She was considering that. She did not get on well with her people in Rochester."

"What was her line of work?"

"Interior decoration and design."

"That's how your daughter met her?"

"Three years ago at an exhibition in Buffalo they became acquainted."

Not until recently was the cause of whooping cough determined. The germ responsible for it is known as the bacillus of Bordet and Gengon, named after its discoverers.

To put it in simple language, this germ becomes lodged in the lining of the windpipe. As it multiplies, swelling and mucus formation result. The mucus prevents normal breathing and produces severe spasms of coughing. Later we observe the characteristic "whoop" of the disease.

How Germs Are Spread

The germs are carried by the saliva and the moisture expelled by the cough. Contact with these secretions causes the disease to be passed from one child to another.

Some children suffer mild attacks, while others have severe and prolonged attacks of coughing. The coughing lowers the vitality. The child becomes weak, loses weight and becomes extremely susceptible to other respiratory infections, such as pneumonia and influenza. These are the most dreaded complications of whooping cough.

Never deliberately expose a child to whooping cough. He should be kept away from one who has, or is suspected of having, whooping cough.

Unfortunately, it is not easy to recognize the disease in its early stage. Persistent coughing is an early sign. In the first period the disease resembles a common cold with a cough. This stage lasts about two weeks and during this time the cough becomes severe and more persistent.

Early Diagnosis Important

Early diagnosis of whooping cough is important. Its recognition prevents the spread of the disease. In addition, it hastens recovery and convalescence to begin treatment at once. When proper care and attention are given to the disease in its early stages, the dreaded complications rarely occur.

Vaccines are recommended for the prevention and cure of whooping cough. The injection is simple, painless and causes no discomfort. Its advocates claim that when given to a child before exposure to the disease, whooping cough may be prevented.

Though there exists a great deal of skepticism as to the value of the vaccine, its use should not be denied. If it proves its worth it will be of particular value during an epidemic of this disease. Then it will be given to all children in the community, regardless of whether they have or have not been exposed.

I have spoken rather doubtfully regarding this vaccine. I hope it may be all that is claimed for it and not a reason to doubt its value. Certainly it can do no harm and if it proves helpful in one case out of a dozen, it is well worth while.

Whooping Cough Neglect Regarded as Dangerous

Health Authority Cautions Mothers Not to Assume This Children's Disease Is Minor—Every Caution of Prevention Is Urged.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.

United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

NOTHING is more distressing than to see a young child suffering from spasms of whooping cough. It causes real misery and, contrary to a belief held by most mothers, is a serious disease.

Whooping cough is one of the chief causes of death in children under five years of age. I believe whooping cough is too frequently neglected and too often looked upon merely as one of the normal happenings of childhood.

Not until recently was the cause of whooping cough determined. The germ responsible for it is known as the bacillus of Bordet and Gengon, named after its discoverers.

To put it in simple language, this germ becomes lodged in the lining of the windpipe. As it multiplies, swelling and mucus formation result. The mucus prevents normal breathing and produces severe spasms of coughing. Later we observe the characteristic "whoop" of the disease.

the famous Paul Revere and others of his contemporaries in the Masonic Order. Out of 36 signers of the Declaration of Independence, 50 were active members of the Masonic fraternity.

Miss Carrie Johnson gave a piano selection which was greatly enjoyed by her audience. Miss Marie Hamilton addressed the chapter on rules and regulations for use of the national emblem. This subject was presented in an interesting way and a great deal of valuable information was derived as she called attention to the mistakes made in displaying the flag, and the wrong uses to which it is often put. Miss Hamilton held the attention of the chapter by the charming manner in which she presented her subject.

After the meeting tempting refreshments were served in the room with Mrs. Bess Lilly, Mrs. Ruth Rogers and Mrs. Carrie Patton in charge.

The chapter will hold a bake sale and market in the room on W. Main-st. formerly occupied by the Hanley Tea room, Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

DESCENDANTS OF FOUR FAMILIES HAVE REUNION
About 150 descendants of the Wiggins, Rector, Terwilliger and Rose families met for their annual reunion, Sunday, at Mt. Pleasant church near Kinderhook. Relatives and friends were present from Columbus, Delaware, Dublin, Lancaster, Washington C. H., Dayton, Springfield, Chillicothe and Circleville.

At noon a bounteous dinner was served in the dining room of the church followed by an enjoyable afternoon spent in music and addresses. The president, Orvil Manley of Columbus, presided.

An address of welcome was given by Herman Eckert of Dublin and a response by Rev. W. B. Rose of Darbyville. Several selections were played by the Good Will quartette and a piano duet rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Rose.

During a business session officers were elected, president, Herman Eckert of Dublin, vice president, J. D. Carter of Kinderhook; secretary, Miss Retha Eckert of Columbus; treasurer, Mrs. Florence Wiggins Morehead of Columbus.

Those attending the reunion from this city were Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Brown, Mrs. Mae Groom, Meeker Terwilliger, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Gearhart and Miss Gertrude Gearhart.

The 1933 reunion will be held Sept. 11 at Mt. Pleasant near Kinderhook.

Third Queen Helen

It's a great year for Helen. We saw Helen Madison sweep the swimming laurels at the Olympics; Helen Jacobs do likewise in the national tennis championships; and now here is Helen Fulton, of Chicago, with the trophy emblematic of the girls' national tennis title, which she won by defeating Bonnie Miller, of Los Angeles, in the final of the tourney at Philadelphia.

Plains chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution will sponsor a loan exhibit Sept. 23 and 24 in the Bales building, E. Main-st., which was formerly occupied by the G. C. Murphy store.

The chapter is endeavoring to make this exhibit of a real benefit to the community and are asking anyone having old quilts, bibles, photographs, clocks, pictures, dishes, glass ware, lamps, furniture or anything of historical interest to loan them to the chapter for this occasion. Articles of local historical interest are especially desired.

Cases will be provided for the articles and a watchman will be in charge of the exhibit at all times. Anyone who is willing to loan articles for this display is requested to notify Mrs. Glenn Nickerson or Mrs. Emmitt Crist. A lunch will be served.

LIST COMMITTEES

The following committees have been appointed to take charge of the exhibit:

Location, Mrs. R. R. Bales, Mrs. Glenn Nickerson; arrangement of exhibits, Mrs. Blenn Bales, Mrs. H. M. Crites, Mrs. Harley Colwell, Mrs. Helen B. Anderson, Mrs. Ella Hornbeck, Mrs. Felix Caldwell, Mrs. Frank Bennett, labeling, Mrs. Brock Briggs, Mrs. Charles Gerhardt; collecting exhibits, Mrs. Emmitt Crist, Mrs. G. L. Schlar, Mrs. Harry Dunlap, Mrs. Seymour Miller, sale of bi-centennial plates, Mrs. Charles Gerhardt.

Publicity, Mrs. Blenn Bales, Mrs. Adrian Yates; invitations, Mrs. Lee Shaner; lunch, Mrs. R. R. Bales, Mrs. H. D. Jackson, Mrs. Hervey Sweyer, Mrs. Harry Dunlap, Miss Edith Haswell, serving, Mrs. Dwight Steele, Miss Helen Yates, Miss Marie Hamilton, Mrs. Lawrence Johnson; tickets, Mrs. Leland Pontius, Mrs. Harry Heffner, Mrs. Emily Yates, Mrs. Charles Pugsley, Mrs. Paul Cromley, Mrs. Emmitt Crist, Mrs. Lee Shaner and Mrs. Adrian Yates.

6-POINT PLAN

administration so that the chief responsibility for its operation will rest with the locality rather than with newly created bureaucratic machinery in Washington.

"Fifth, it must operate as nearly as possible on a cooperative basis and its effect must be to enhance and strengthen the cooperative movement. It should, moreover, be constituted so that it can be withdrawn whenever the emergency has passed and normal foreign markets have been re-established.

"Sixth, the plan must not be coercive. It must be voluntary and the individual producer should at all times have the opportunity of nonparticipation, if he so desires. It must be so organized that the benefits go to the man who participates."

Gov. Roosevelt did not mention either the equalization fee or the export debenture plans, both of which met presidential vetoes some years ago, but some of his hearers interpreted his six-point plan as contemplating possibly a combination of some of the features of each.

Others characterized it as the so-called "voluntary domestic allotment" plans favored by leaders of the National Grange. In all events, and however worked out, the Roosevelt proposal is to make the tariff applicable to farm aid in the same sense that it is now used for industrial aid. Whatever the label, the root of it is tariff benefit for agriculture.

"It seems to me," he continued, "that these are the essential specifications of a workable plan. In determining the details of so vast a problem, it goes without saying many minds must keep and many persons must work together."

Gov. Roosevelt proposed his six-point program as an emergency measure. In the longer view, he also proposed reorganization of the department of agriculture, in the working out of a policy of national agricultural planning.

Another process of permanent relief for agriculture, he said, "can come through national leadership in the reduction and more equitable distribution of taxes," there is a pressing necessity, he said, for the refinancing of farm mortgages "in order to relieve the burden of excessive interest charges and the grim threat of foreclosure."

ABOARD ROOSEVELT SPECIAL TRAIN, Sept. 14—Elated by the smashing Democratic victory in Maine, and encouraged by glowing reports on Democratic prospects in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt travelled today through the heart of the grain belt, bound for Topeka where he will make the first of the major speeches of his western invasion.

The Democratic nominee had every reason to be satisfied with the results of his first day campaigning. It brought news of the unexpected, but much welcomed, Democratic victory in traditionally Republican Maine, and it was marked with the optimistic predictions of middle western leaders that the Maine result would be duplicated throughout the Mississippi valley in November.

REPORTS IDENTICAL
In Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri, the tale poured in Gov. Roosevelt's ear was all the same—that the tide of resentment against the Hoover administration was running so high that it insured Democratic victory this year.

Gov. Roosevelt reached Kansas City this morning after a notable demonstration accorded him at the Missouri capital, Jefferson City, late last night. The Democratic state convention was in progress and thousands of people thronged the capitol steps to greet him during an hour's visit.

Although he had not expected to leave his train, the Governor was prevailed upon to do so by the state leaders, among them Ex-Senator James A. Reed, and Benet (Champ) Clark, the Democratic senatorial candidate.

From the steps of the capitol, Gov. Roosevelt asked: "Maine has spoken: What about Missouri?"

The answer was a roar of assurance that Missouri would be found in the Democratic column in November.

State leaders privately assured the Governor that he would carry the state by 100,000, notwithstanding that no Democratic candidate for the presidency has come close to winning Missouri since 1916.

From Kansas City this morning, the Roosevelt special was routed over the Rock Island to Topeka, where at noon, from the steps of the state capitol, he will deliver the first of his major addresses in the west, dealing with the all-important western subject of farm relief.

After the Topeka speech, Gov. Roosevelt will spend the day as

RECREATION CORPS ENTERTAINS VETERANS

The local recreation corps sponsored another of its pleasant card parties for the inmates in the Veterans' hospital at Chillicothe Tuesday afternoon. Cards were played and the veterans were treated with candy and cigarettes. Mrs. B. T. Hedges and Mrs. J. P. Moffitt were hostesses at yesterday's affair.

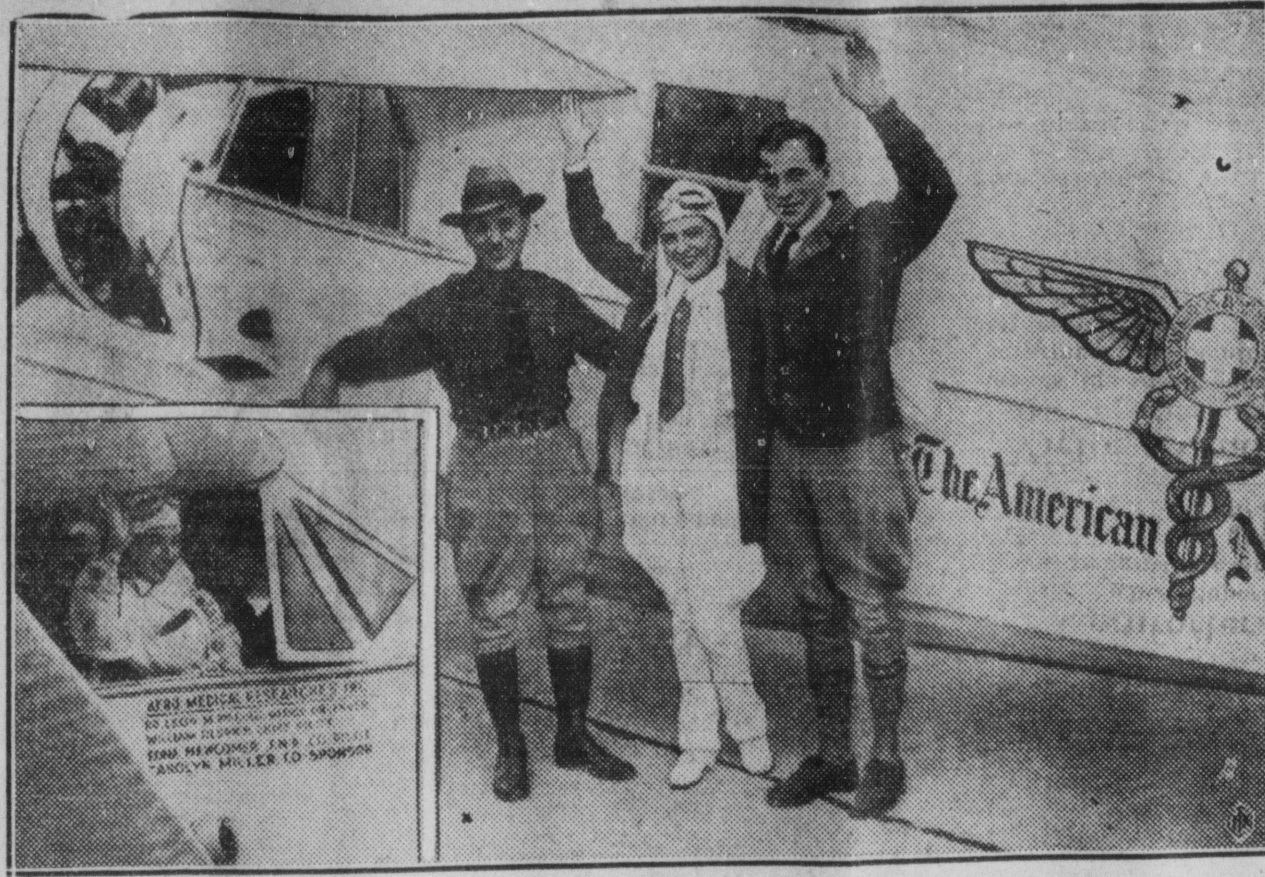

Those motoring there were Miss Ann Bennett, Miss Mary Alice Bales, Miss Martha Leist, Miss Jane Mader, Mrs. R. R. Bales, Miss Winifred Parrett, Mrs. Charles Smith, Miss Mary Heffner, Mrs. Ray Reid, Mrs. Evan Reichelderfer, Miss Helen Marion, Miss Abbe Clarke, Miss Gretchen Moeller, Mrs. Clark Hunsicker, Mrs. Irwin Boggs, Miss Elizabeth Spahn, Mrs. Orion King, Mrs. Wallace Crist and the hostesses.

O. E. S. HAS FIRST FALL MEETING

The Circleville chapter Order of the Eastern Star met in regular session Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Masonic temple. It was announced that the Grand chapter of Ohio would hold its annual meeting in Dayton, Oct. 25, 26, and 27. Several members of the local chapter are planning to attend its sessions.

The committee in charge of the Washington Bi-Centennial program presented Senator C. C. Chapplear in a delightful and interesting address on the subject of "Washington as a Mason." There was much educational and inspiring data concerning General Washington's great prominence and activities as well as that of the famous Paul Revere and others of his contemporaries in the Masonic Order. Out of 56 signers of the Declaration of Independence, 50 were active members of the Masonic fraternity.

As Flying Nurse Took Off for Rome

With weather forecasters predicting ideal conditions for the flight, the crew of the plane, "Flying Nurse," are shown just before they took off from Floyd Bennett Airport, New York, bound for Rome, Italy. Left to right, are Dr. Leon M. Pisculli, of Yonkers, N. Y., who will observe his fellow-fliers' reactions during the flight; Miss Edna Newcomer, Williamsport, Pa., nurse, who plans to make a parachute jump from the plane when it reaches Florence, Italy; and William Ulbrich, the pilot. Inset is a photo of Miss Newcomer in the cockpit of the plane just before it roared down the runway at the take-off.

Miss Carrie Johnson gave a piano selection which was greatly enjoyed by her audience.

Miss Marie Hamilton addressed the chapter on rules and regulations for use of the national emblem. This subject was presented in an interesting way and a great deal of valuable information was derived as she called attention to the mistakes made in displaying the flag, and the wrong uses to which it is often put. Miss Hamilton held the attention of the chapter by the charming manner in which she presented her subject.

After the meeting tempting refreshments were served in the red room with Mrs. Bess Lilly, Mrs. Ruth Rogers and Mrs. Carrie Patton in charge.

The chapter will hold a bake sale and market in the room on W. Main-st. formerly occupied by the Hanley Tea room, Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

DESCENDANTS OF FOUR FAMILIES HAVE REUNION

About 150 descendants of the Wiggins, Rector, Terwilliger and Rose families met for their annual reunion, Sunday, at Mt. Pleasant church near Kinderhook. Relatives and friends were present from Columbus, Delaware, Dublin, Lancaster, Washington C. H., Dayton, Springfield, Chillicothe and Circleville.

At noon a bounteous dinner was served in the dining room of the church followed by an enjoyable afternoon spent in music and addresses. The president, Orvil Manley of Columbus, presided.

An address of welcome was given by Herman Eckert of Dublin and a response by Rev. W. B. Rose of Darbyville. Several selections were played by the Good Will quartette and a piano duet rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Rose.

During a business session officers were elected: president, Herman Eckert of Dublin; vice president, J. D. Carter of Kinderhook; secretary, Miss Retha Eckert of Columbus; treasurer, Mrs. Florence Wiggins Morehead of Columbus.

Those attending the reunion from this city were Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Brown, Mrs. Mae Groom, Meeker Terwilliger, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Gearhart and Miss Gertrude Gearhart.

The 1933 reunion will be held Sept. 11 at Mt. Pleasant near Kinderhook.

COMMITTEES APPOINTED FOR LOAN EXHIBIT

As part of its Washington Bi-Centennial program, the Pickaway

Third Queen Helen

It's a great year for Helens. We saw Helen Madison sweep the swimming laurels at the Olympics; Helen Jacobs do likewise in the national tennis championships and now here is Helen Fulton, of Chicago, with the trophy emblematic of the girls' national tennis title, which she won by defeating Bonnie Miller, of Los Angeles, in the final of the tourney at Philadelphia.

Plains chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution will sponsor a loan exhibit Sept. 23 and 24 in the Bales building, E. Main-st., which was formerly occupied by the G. C. Murphy store.

The chapter is endeavoring to make this exhibit of real benefit to the community and are asking anyone having old quilts, bibles, photographs, clocks, pictures, dishes, glass ware, lamps, furniture or anything of historical interest to loan them to the chapter for this occasion. Articles of local historical interest are especially desired.

Cases will be provided for the articles and a watchman will be in charge of the exhibit at all times. Anyone who is willing to loan articles for this display is requested to notify Mrs. Glenn Nickerson or Mrs. Emmitt Crist. A lunch will be served.

LIST COMMITTEES

The following committees have been appointed to take charge of the exhibit:

Location, Mrs. R. R. Bales, Mrs. Glenn Nickerson; arrangement of exhibits, Mrs. Blenn R. Bales, Mrs. H. M. Crites, Mrs. Harley Colwell, Mrs. Helen B. Anderson, Mrs. Ella Hornbeck, Mrs. Felix Caldwell, Mrs. Frank Bennett; labeling exhibits, Mrs. Adrian Yates, Mrs. Bryce Briggs, Mrs. Charles Harbort; collecting exhibits, Mrs. Emmitt Crist, Mrs. G. L. Schlear, Mrs. Harry Dunlap, Mrs. Seymour Miller; sale of bi-centennial plates Mrs. Charles Gerhardt.

Publicity, Mrs. Blenn Bales, Mrs. Adrian Yates; invitations, Mrs. Lee Shaner; lunch, Mrs. R. R. Bales, Mrs. H. D. Jackson, Mrs. Hervey Sweyer, Mrs. Harry Dunlap, Miss Edith Haswell; serving, Mrs. Dwight Steele, Miss Helen Yates, Miss Marie Hamilton, Mrs. Lawrence Johnson; tickets, Mrs. Leland Pontius, Mrs. Harry Heffner, Miss Emily Yates, Mrs. Charles Pugsley, Mrs. Paul Cromley, Mrs. Emmitt Crist, Mrs. Lee Shaner and Mrs. Adrian Yates.

administration so that the chief responsibility for its operation will rest with the locality rather than with newly created bureaucratic machinery in Washington.

Fifth, it must operate as nearly as possible on a cooperative basis and its effect must be to enhance and strengthen the cooperative movement. It should, moreover, be constituted so that it can be withdrawn whenever the emergency has passed and normal foreign markets have been re-established.

Sixth, the plan must not be coercive. It must be voluntary and the individual producer should at all times have the opportunity of nonparticipation, if he so desires. It must be so organized that the benefits go to the man who participates.

Gov. Roosevelt did not mention either the equalization fee or the export debenture plans, both of which met presidential vetoes some years ago, but some of his hearers interpreted his six-point plan as contemplating possibly a combination of some of the features of each.

Others characterized it as the so-called "voluntary" domestic allotment plans favored by leaders of the National Grange. In all events, and however worked out, the Roosevelt proposal is to make the tariff applicable to farm aid in the same sense that it is now used for industrial aid. Whatever the label, the root of it is tariff benefit for agriculture.

"It seems to me" he continued, "that these are the essential specifications of a workable plan. In determining the details of so vast a problem, it goes without saying many minds must keep and many persons must work together."

Gov. Roosevelt proposed his six-point program as an emergency measure. In the longer view, he also proposed reorganization of the department of agriculture, in the working out of a policy of national agricultural planning.

Another process of permanent relief for agriculture, he said, "can come through national leadership in the reduction and more equitable distribution of taxes," there is a pressing necessity, he said, for the refinancing of farm mortgages "in order to relieve the burden of excessive interest charges and the grim threat of foreclosure."

ABOARD ROOSEVELT SPECIAL TRAIN, Sept. 14—Elated by the smashing Democratic victory in Maine, and encouraged by glowing reports on Democratic prospects in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt traveled today through the heart of the grain belt, bound for Topeka where he will make the first of the major speeches of his western invasion.

The Democratic nominee had every reason to be satisfied with the results of his first day campaigning. It brought news of the unexpected, but much welcomed, Democratic victory in traditionally Republican Maine, and it was marked with the optimistic predictions of middle western leaders that the Maine result would be duplicated throughout the Mississippi valley in November.

REPORTS IDENTICAL
In Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri, the tale poured in Gov. Roosevelt's ear was all the same—that the tide of resentment against the Hoover administration was running so high that it insured Democratic victory this year.

Gov. Roosevelt reached Kansas City this morning after a notable demonstration accorded him at the Missouri capital, Jefferson City, late last night. The Democratic state convention was in progress and thousands of people thronged the capitol steps to greet him during an hour's visit.

Although he had not expected to leave his train, the Governor was prevailed upon to do so by the state leaders, among them Ex-Senator James A. Reed, and Benet (Champ) Clark, the Democratic senatorial candidate.

From the steps of the capitol, Gov. Roosevelt asked: "Maine has spoken: What about Missouri?"

The answer was a roar of assurance that Missouri would be found in the Democratic column in November.

State leaders privately assured the Governor that he would carry the state by 100,000, notwithstanding that no Democratic candidate for the presidency has come close to winning Missouri since 1916.

From Kansas City this morning, the Roosevelt special was routed over the Rock Island to Topeka, where at noon, from the steps of the state capitol, he will deliver the first of his major addresses in the west, dealing with the all-important western subject of farm relief.

After the Topeka speech, Gov. Roosevelt will spend the day as
